

UPI / Online Payment Fraud

Online payment fraud is one of the most common cybercrimes in India. It usually happens when fraudsters trick users into sharing sensitive information such as OTP, UPI PIN, or bank details.

A typical scenario begins when a victim receives a phone call, SMS, or message claiming to be from a bank or payment service. The fraudster may say that there is an issue with the account or offer a fake reward or cashback. Then they ask the victim to click on a link or install an app. Once the victim enters their details or approves a payment request, money is instantly transferred from their account.

Student and elderly people are often targeted because they may not be fully aware of such scams. The consequences include financial loss, stress, and sometimes difficulty in recovering the stolen money.

This type of cybercrime highlights the importance of awareness and careful online behavior. Users must always verify sources and never share confidential information with unknown people.
